

Money Management

Learning to manage your money is the most important step toward financial independence.

When was the last time the amount of change in your pocket was the deciding factor in what you would have to eat? The last time you swiped your debit card, did you hope the transaction would clear without any overdraft fees? Many college students encounter these financial situations all too often and get caught in a world of debt. Managing your money is the best way to reduce the chance of experiencing this kind of pain. This brochure includes a few tips to help you get started on managing your money.

MONEY EDUCATION

Tip #1

Break down your Needs and Wants

A Need is a required purchase to pay bills for the essentials, items you “must have” each month (rent, utility bill, groceries, etc.).

A Want (entertainment, new clothes, going out, etc.) is something you would like to purchase after you have paid for your Needs.

To avoid damaging your credit, pay off your Needs before planning how to spend for your Wants.

Here’s how to find how much you have for Wants:

1. First, add up all of your monthly income. Monthly income includes money from work, scholarships, loans, grants, or allowances from family/friends
2. Take your monthly income and subtract your Needs throughout the month, both fixed expenses and any variable expenses.
  - Fixed expenses include recurring bills like rent, car payments, or cable and internet bills that don’t generally fluctuate and are constant every month.
  - Variable expenses include cell phone bills, utilities, etc. in which the amount is a function of your usage and the monthly rate varies.
3. Once you have subtracted your Needs from your monthly income, you have your Wants amount of available cash remaining. Your Wants should be left over to cover anything you may want once all your needs are addressed. This category should cover trips to the movies, or going out on the weekends, and only allows you to spend a certain amount. This way, you won’t lose control of your money and spend more than you realize.

“If you want or think you need something, wait a full 24 hours before you buy it. This will help you determine if it is worth your money.”

Create a spending plan

First, estimate your income and expenses for this month. Then, track your actual income and expenses. Use your actual figures for this month to budget your income and expenses for next month. Determine which of your expenses are Needs and which are Wants so that you can realistically determine which expenses must be paid and which expenses you can cut back on.
